THIS WEEK'S PROGRAM:

Peter Anderson

It was wonderful this morning to meet in person at the Native Daughters' Adobe and via Zoom. All were excited to listen to our "brother Rotarian" Peter Anderson, who was to share his life story.

Unfortunately, about a quarter of the way through Peter's presentation, we had technology problems and Peter was unable to continue as he needed to speak while showing his prepared Power Point. That being said, we did learn that Peter was raised in a middle-class neighborhood in Menlo Park with his younger brother, who is his best friend to this day.

Peter attended college in Maine where he learned more than his academic major of geology (i.e., canoeing, chopping wood, ski jumping, climbing ice). Upon graduating college, Peter states, "I wanted to change the world and I figured I could do it all myself so I joined the Peace Corps, and they sent me to Nigeria, way up in the north." While living in a little village, his charge was to speak to the leaders and community members to assess the needs of the community. Given this information, Peter led a project to build a drainage ditch around the village. About 10-years ago, Peter revisited his Peace Corp village as a Rotarian and was the master of ceremony for the dedication of a water system built by Rotarians.

And then the technology went array. Peter has been invited back to complete his very interesting story. We all look forward to seeing him again.
